

Update: Crime Victim Rights Manual (Revised Edition)

CHAPTER 8

The Crime Victim at Trial

8.14 Former Testimony of Unavailable Witness

C. Defendant's Right to Confront the Witnesses Against Him or Her

Insert the following text after the June 2005 update to page 264:

In United States v Arnold, ___ F3d ___ (CA 6, 2005), the Sixth Circuit expounded on the Supreme Court's discussion of testimonial evidence in Crawford v Washington, 541 US 36, 50–62 (2004), by examining the dictionary definitions of the terms “testimony” and “testimonial.” In Arnold, the court noted that “[t]he Oxford English Dictionary (‘OED’) defines ‘testimonial’ as ‘serving as evidence; conducive to proof;’ as ‘verbal or documentary evidence;’ and as ‘[s]omething serving as proof or evidence.’ . . . The OED defines ‘testimony’ as ‘[p]ersonal or documentary evidence or attestation in support of a fact or statement; hence, any form of evidence or proof.’ . . . (emphasis added).” The Court further noted that Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language “defines ‘testimonial’ as ‘something that serves as evidence: proof.’” The dictionary definitions, coupled with Crawford's standard that statements made to government officers— including police—are testimonial in nature and should not be admitted when a defendant has not had the opportunity to cross-examine the declarant, compelled the Arnold Court to conclude that the out-of-court statements were improperly admitted against the defendant at trial.

CHAPTER 10

Restitution

10.6 Persons or Entities Entitled to Restitution

A. Any Victim of the Course of Conduct That Gave Rise to the Conviction or Adjudication

On page 320, add the following text after the second full paragraph:

MCL 712A.30(1)(b) states in part:

“For purposes of subsections (2), (3), (6), (8), (9), and (13), victim includes a sole proprietorship, partnership, corporation, association, governmental entity, or other legal entity that suffers direct physical or financial harm as a result of a juvenile offense.”

MCL 780.794(1)(b) contains substantially similar language.

In In re McEvoy, ___ Mich App ___, ___ (2005), the trial court ordered the juvenile and his parents to pay restitution to a school district’s insurer.* On appeal, the juvenile’s parents argued “that pursuant to the definition of ‘victim’ in MCL 712A.30(1)(b), the school district is a victim for purposes of only ‘subsections (2), (3), (6), (8), (9), and (13)’ and therefore parents may not be required to pay restitution under subsection (15) to a ‘non-individual’ victim.” The Court of Appeals rejected this argument, stating:

“Foremost in negating appellants’ logic is the fact that the word victim does not appear in subsection (15), and therefore there is no need to define the term for purposes of that subsection. Further, the key language in the definition of the term ‘victim’ is identical in both the juvenile code and the CVRA[.] . . . Subsection (2) is the key substantive provision providing for restitution and that subsection expressly states that the court shall order that the juvenile ‘make full restitution to any victim,’ which by definition includes a legal entity such as the school district.” [Citations and footnotes omitted.] McEvoy, supra at ___.

More importantly, a review of the restitution provisions in both the Juvenile Code and CVRA reveal that the subsections not applicable to the definition of “non-individual” victims have no logical application to legal entities (e.g., restitution for physical or psychological injuries or death) or are primarily procedural.

*For more information on ordering a parent to pay restitution, see Section 10.13.

10.6 Persons or Entities Entitled to Restitution

B. Individuals or Entities That Have Compensated the Victim

On page 324, insert the following text immediately before subsection (C):

In In re McEvoy, ___ Mich App ___ (2005), the trial court ordered a juvenile's parents to pay restitution to a school district's insurer for damage caused by the juvenile setting fire to a high school. The restitution amount was based on the amount the insurer paid to the insured under the insurance policy—the replacement value of the damaged property. The Court of Appeals vacated the restitution order and remanded for redetermination of the amount of loss actually suffered by the school district. Id. at ___. The Court construed MCL 712A.30(8), which, like MCL 780.794(8), requires a court to order restitution to a legal entity that has compensated a direct victim “for a loss incurred by the [direct] victim to the extent of the compensation paid for that loss.” The Court stated that under MCL 712A.30(8), “an entity that compensated a victim ‘for a loss incurred by the victim’ is entitled to receive restitution ‘to the extent of the compensation paid for that loss,’ clearly meaning the loss of the victim, not the loss of the compensating entity.” McEvoy, supra at ___. The Court noted that the statutory provisions for calculating restitution for property damage or destruction use the value of the property damaged or destroyed—the victim's actual loss—as the basis for a restitution order. The Court stated:

“Under the circumstances of the case, the loss of the compensating entity is based on the commercial transaction involved, i.e., the school district's purchase of replacement coverage insurance, rather than the loss resulting from the fire, which underscores that the result is incongruent with the purpose of the statute. Although the amount of restitution is within the discretion of the trial court, the court erred to the extent it ordered restitution to SET-SEG on the basis of the amount SET-SEG compensated the school district, rather than the amount of the actual loss sustained by the school. Restitution must be based on the value of the property damaged, i.e., the victim's actual loss.” Id.

10.9 Calculating Restitution Where the Offense Results in Property Damage, Destruction, Loss, or Seizure

Insert the following text at the bottom of page 327:

In In re McEvoy, ___ Mich App ___ (2005), the trial court ordered a juvenile's parents to pay restitution to a school district's insurer for damage caused by the juvenile setting fire to a high school. The restitution amount was based on the amount the insurer paid to the insured under the insurance policy—the replacement value of the damaged property. The Court of Appeals vacated the restitution order and remanded for redetermination of the amount of loss actually suffered by the school district. Id. at ___. The Court construed MCL 712A.30(8), which, like MCL 780.794(8), requires a court to order restitution to a legal entity that has compensated a direct victim “for a loss incurred by the [direct] victim to the extent of the compensation paid for that loss.” The Court stated that under MCL 712A.30(8), “an entity that compensated a victim ‘for a loss incurred by the victim’ is entitled to receive restitution ‘to the extent of the compensation paid for that loss,’ clearly meaning the loss of the victim, not the loss of the compensating entity.” McEvoy, supra at ___. The Court noted that the statutory provisions for calculating restitution for property damage or destruction use the value of the property damaged or destroyed—the victim's actual loss—as the basis for a restitution order. The Court stated:

“Under the circumstances of the case, the loss of the compensating entity is based on the commercial transaction involved, i.e., the school district's purchase of replacement coverage insurance, rather than the loss resulting from the fire, which underscores that the result is incongruent with the purpose of the statute. Although the amount of restitution is within the discretion of the trial court, the court erred to the extent it ordered restitution to SET-SEG on the basis of the amount SET-SEG compensated the school district, rather than the amount of the actual loss sustained by the school. Restitution must be based on the value of the property damaged, i.e., the victim's actual loss.” Id.

10.13 Hearings on Restitution Payable by Parents of Juvenile Offenders

On page 335, insert the following text immediately before Section 10.14:

The Juvenile Code does not limit the amount of restitution for which a supervisory parent may be held liable. In re McEvoy, ___ Mich App ___, ___ (2005). In McEvoy, a juvenile pled guilty to arson of real property and malicious destruction of personal property for setting fire to a high school. The trial court ordered the juvenile and his supervising parents to pay restitution but limited the parents' liability to their insurance proceeds. The juvenile's parents appealed the order, arguing that the Parental Liability Act, MCL 600.2913,* when read along with MCL 712A.30, limits a parent's liability to $2,500.00 in civil court actions. The Court of Appeals rejected the parents' argument, indicating that the Juvenile Code previously contained limits on a parent's liability, and the Legislature removed those limits. Furthermore, MCL 712A.30(9) provides that the amount of restitution paid to a victim must be set off against any compensatory damages recovered in a civil proceeding, clearly recognizing that restitution is independent of any damages sought in a civil proceeding.

*See Section 12.2 for a brief discussion of MCL 600.2913.

In McEvoy, the parents also argued that because MCL 712A.30(15) allows the court to impose unlimited restitution without a showing of fault on the part of the supervisory parent, it unconstitutionally deprives the parents of substantive due process. Applying a "rational basis" standard of review, the Court of Appeals disagreed. The Court first noted that although the Juvenile Code does not contain a limit on the amount a parent may be ordered to pay, it does limit imposition of liability to a parent having supervisory responsibility of the juvenile at the time of the criminal acts. In addition, a court must consider a parent's ability to pay and may cancel all or part of the parent's obligation if payment will impose a manifest hardship. Thus, parental liability may not be imposed solely based on a familial relationship.

"The Legislature has clearly sought to link liability with responsibility in a reasonable, but purposeful manner, rather than burdening society generally or the victim, in particular, for the costs of a juvenile's illegal acts. The statute reasonably imposes liability on the parent responsible for supervising the child." McEvoy, supra at ___.

The Court concluded that the provisions for restitution by a supervisory parent bear a reasonable relationship to a permissible legislative objective; therefore, there is no violation of the parents' due process rights.

The parents also argued "that MCL 712A.30 is an unconstitutional bill of attainder because it punishes parents for their status, not their conduct." McEvoy, supra at ___. A bill of attainder is a "legislative act that determines guilt and inflicts punishment upon an identifiable group of individuals without the protections of a judicial trial." Id. In order to determine whether the statute acts as a bill of attainder, the court must determine if the statute “inflicts forbidden punishment.” The Court of Appeals determined that the restitution provisions of MCL 712A.30 “do not fall within the historical meaning of legislative punishment and are not validly characterized as punishment in the constitutional sense.” McEvoy, supra at _____. The restitution provisions were designed to serve a nonpunitive purpose: to enable victims to be fairly compensated for losses. The Court also noted that MCL 712A.30(16) and (17) are specific provisions to mitigate any undue financial burden imposed upon parents. The Court concluded that given the nonpunitive nature of the sanctions and the statute’s purpose and effect, it does not act as a bill of attainder.